BREED THEATER.

The Little Fiddler, Exquisite Picture Drama.

Among the many splendid high grade motion pictures to be shown at the Breeds Theater this week may be mentioned the beautiful story that is filled with tender scenes dealing with the vicissitudes of a young mother whose recent husband having left her with a small son and adopted the profession of society thief. The little boy plays the violin on the streets to support her and his mother, and while playing he notices that a party is in progress and the mother, hearing his music, comes to play to the party. It happens that his father is one of the guests, and the mother, having given him a good deal of attention to the boy, takes his address. Later a bag containing jewelry and the address of the little boy is stolen by the father and the blame naturally falls on the boy. While the mother is being procured to arrest the little chap the father is investigating the contents of the stolen bag, when he comes upon the address of the violin player, who is none other than his own son. He is overcome with remorse and hastens to the address, arriving just in time to acknowledge his crime and be marched to jail instead of his innocent son. It is a magnificent picture, appearing at the Breeds Theater. There is a fine Biograph comedy, and Miss Hampton sings the beautiful concert ballad, "The Star of Bethlehem," and Where Are the Scenes of Yesterday?

Gold Leaf—Oldest Industry.

An industry or art that seems to have reached its unchanged form from ancient Egypt and Greece is that of beating gold into thin foil for decorative purposes, says Science Staffings. John Martin, who has been investigating the subject and says that the origin of gold leaf is lost in antiquity, but that the material was used in the skin, tongue, etc., of some of the most ancient mummies ever discovered. It was placed also on tombs, monuments and the like. Golding with sheets of hammered gold and skins of gold was known as early as the eighth century B. C. and the eleventh century A. D. at least the process of bringing the gold into the thin sheets or skins has been substantially the same as today. The Greek pottery of the gold leaf appears even on same pottery of the third century and Egyptian coffins of the third.

Very Secret.

In a small South American state, which had recently undergone a change in administration, a secret decree authorized an artist to order new designs for the official uniforms. "I wish showy costumes, very showy," he said, "and I want you to impress by them. I have here some sketches that I myself have made by these ideas as much as possible." The artists examined the sketches and said, "This is a very good design, turning the pages, is evidently for the navy, and this is for the army, but if you please, what is this long line on a three-cornered hat, yellow dress, coat trimmed with purple, and... That," replied the chief of state gravely, "is for the secret police!"

Religious Zeal.

Some time ago a new minister was appointed to a chapel in a town in northern Lancashire, and the first Sunday he appeared, he used his duties one of the deacons rose and made an extempore prayer on the pastor's behalf. "Oh, I have heard of you," he said, "and I have heard of your eagle, so as he can say, a sin a long while ago. Give him a long while ago. The his tongue to the line of truth. Nail his ear to the Gospel word. How his eye down between his knees and his knees down in some lonesome, dark and narrow valley, where prayer is much wanted to be made. Amid him, the oil of salvation, and let him shine! Amen."

Naturalizing the Nightingale.

Some experiments have been tried lately which had for their object the naturalization of the nightingale in Scotland. The birds were brought up and hatched out in robin's nests quite successfully, and the young birds remained about during the summer but they disappeared in autumn and did not return the following year. The inference seems to have been drawn that the climate of Scotland is too cold or too moist for them; but probably there is another reason, that this, and is likely to be a reason associated with their food supply. It may be that this again is controlled by the climate.

Greater Britain's Vast Sheep Flocks.

Thirty years ago the number of sheep in the British Empire was roughly 130 millions, of which Australia contributed just under 50 millions. A recent compilation gives the flock of the empire as about 200 millions, of which the Australian commonwealth provides close upon half. This calculation includes Australia, Canada, Cape Colony, Ceylon, India, Natal, Orange River Colony, Transvaal, New Zealand, and the United Kingdom. The total number of sheep in the world is about 400 millions, so that the British Empire contains about 42 per cent. of the world's sheep, as against 25 per cent. three decades ago.

If You Want to Know the Time.

At a military station in Egypt, as was the custom elsewhere, a gun was fired each day at noon, to give a standard of time. An inquisitive officer, anxious to know how the British Empire worked, sought out the artilleryman who fired and asked how he knew the time. "Why, look at my watch," said the soldier, "and you will know how you check your watch." "Oh, I take it to the maker," said the officer, "and he sets it right and then he will offer to the watchmaker." "How do you get the standard time," said he. "I get the correct time every day from the noonday gun," said the man, with honest pride.

Density of Japan's Population.

Japan has in its main island, exclusive of Formosa and other islands, a population of 48,542,726, and the area of its cultivated fields is 21,321 square miles. This is 277 people to the square mile. There are also maintained 2,600,000 cattle and horses, nearly all of which are laboring animals, and a population of 142 people and seven horses and cattle to every forty acres of cultivated land.

Following Philadelphia's example, New York has set on foot a permanent exhibition of building materials.

GLEANINGS.

Ostrich feathers valued at $8,000,945 have been exported from the Cape of Good Hope in one year.

In 1888 Canada had open for traffic 1,200 miles of railroad line. In 1908 there were being operated 23,000 miles of line.

Antelope are still found in fourteen western states, though the total number is approximately only 17,000.

In Nantes, France, a city of 160,000 population, there is not a single modern steam laundry. The washing is done on boats.

Massachusetts has 5,671 electrical manufacturing establishments, with a product value of $1,384,431,255, representing a gain of about $240,000,000 over 1906, or 21.38 per cent.

At the Game. She—What did the man with the wire over his eyes say? He—One ball.

He—The pitcher threw a ball. That's different from a strike, you know.

She—Of course. Anybody could see he threw a ball. He had it in plain sight in his hand. What else would he be expected to throw?

He—A strike. She—But the man with the stick does the striking, doesn't he?

He—He strikes, but it's a strike if he misses. She—There! That man who talks about "strikes" and the one with the stick hadn't stirred.

He—It was a good ball, and he ought to have struck. She—Well, he didn't, and it isn't fair to treat him that way. Why, now, he dropped the stick and is going away.

He—Yes. He gets his base on four balls. She—Why, you story teller, there's only one ball there. Say, Harry, do the players wear horrid spikes in their gloves?

He—No, the spikes are in their shoes. She—Dear me, but I should think that would hurt. Why, I had a little nail in my shoe one day and it made me just as lame as you.

He—Trying to catch a fly. She—Now, Harry, you're fooling me. The idea of making all that fuss over a fly! And it's too early in the season, anyhow. We haven't put up our screens yet.

He—Hello! A squeeze play! Bull! She—Kind of a play is that? He—My dear girl, you have caught the general plan of the game beautifully, but the squeeze play is something I'll explain that the next time we come.

She—Oh, will you bring me again? When shall we come? He—The boss says I may have another afternoon off in 1915—Philadelphia Ledger.

MADE GREAT APPEAL TO HIM.

Silence of Ants Especially Impressed Bibulous Individual.

"I hope and trust, much po', underdone brudder," severely said good old Parson Bagster, addressing a bibulous inclined member of his flock, 'dat 'de 'stressin' apperance of night, 'befo' 'last will be a lesson to yo'!" "Yassah," replied the erring one, "begging his kind, I been u'packin' home too many drama, now and ag'in, yuh of late, as muh wife—fine lady as dar is in the world!—has been p'intedly tellin' me. But, on de monumental 'casion' yo' defers to I gits lit up and dragged down by de wayside and slept all night on an ant hill, and de paltry yamints mighty tight eat me up. Blame 'narr skinned me alive, sah, dem ants did; but dey didn't talk 'uh-whist dey was doin' it. Nussah, dey never said a word 'bout de awful contamination of muh 'henus' conduct, and all dis and dat and de tuder—deess et yeh up in peace and quiet. And after dis, if I keeps muh mind, whenever I gits too cock 'dat 'ar balloon juice in muh personality, I's gwine to lay out on an ant hill all night, preference 'dat home to muh family. By de blesin' of de Lawd, ants don't talk!"—Tom P. Morgan, in Puck.

Pronunciation.

Here is what a recognized authority says on the subject: "In spoken language, pronunciation is the most striking element, and thus it happens that it is, more than any other one thing, the most obvious test of general culture. Even in a speaker of recognized ability, his mispronunciations fall harshly upon the ear, and cause the hearer to suspect that his early, if not later, education has been wanting in polish, or that he has not been accustomed to the society of refined and cultivated people. Surely a writer does not overestimate the case or exaggerate, in any way, the importance of correct pronunciation.

Dispan Suicide.

Race suicide has resulted in one presidential contraction that not even President Roosevelt ever counted on. It has caused dispanians to grow smaller.

"Where are the enormous dispanians of yesterday?" queried a woman shopper. "The kind that you could pile all the dishes used by a family of 12 into a single dish!" "Yes, and how do you check your watch?" "Oh, I take it to the maker," said the woman. "He sets it right and then he will offer to the watchmaker." "How do you get the standard time," said he. "I get the correct time every day from the noonday gun," said the man, with honest pride.

Taking Chances.

"He is a professional gambler, is he not?" "No, a professional gambler never takes chances." "Does he take chances?" "He's going to get married!"

The Bank of Taiwan, a semi-government institution, has increased its capital stock from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 gold.

The Gain in Texas.

The south evidently is to gain rather heavily in population under this year's census. Forty-five counties in Texas show a gain of 226,417 in ten years.

Jackson, the capital of Mississippi, is the most populous city in the south since 1900. The whole southwest expects large gains.

England's Postal Banks.

The postal savings banks are evidently a success in Great Britain. There is over a billion dollars invested in them. Uncle Sam's venture may prove quite popular after all.—Bridgeport Post.

The Public and the Strike.

If the public are not coming forward as partisans of one side or the other in this strike, they are inclined to resent the attitude of the public interests in it.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Apologetic. We very much regret that, as a duty in presenting the news of the day, the Journal finds itself forced to print another foolish letter from Mayor Thayer of Norwich. If only that eccentric gentleman knew what his friends are saying he would promptly quit. The position which he seems to be trying to create in our political life was abolished from the courts of monarchs centuries ago and has become an adjunct of the circus.
